Serving the People of Suffolk County

With his family by his side, Suffolk Legislator Tom Cilmi was sworn in to his second term of office yesterday. Cilmi, who won his first bid for reelection with nearly 75% of the vote, credited his mom for raising him to be "a good person first and foremost," his wife Anna for her love and support, and his children, Stefanie and Tom, for giving him "reason to fight for the future of our community, our County and our Country."

After the ceremony, Cilmi said, "I thank God and my family for giving me the strength of purpose to do this job. And I renew my commitment to the businesses and residents of Suffolk County that I will continue to fight for reduced bureaucracy and greater efficiency in government; that I will continue to view my job through the eyes of our most burdened taxpayers; that I will continue to fight for mandate relief, reduced spending and borrowing; and that I will continue to be outspoken on the dangers of underage drinking and drug abuse."
